The Ibsen reading held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Chief Justice Fuller was, if possible, more largely attended than the one of a week since. The report which gained currency during the week that the entertainment was to be given the go-by on account of an alleged laxity of morals portrayed in "The Doll Home," the piece selected for the afternoon's reading, appears to have been lack-ing in the fundamental quality of truth. Not only was the large parlor taxed to its Not only was the large parlor taxed to its utmost capacity, but some time before Mrs. Erving Winslow appeared it was found necessary to fill the spacious hallway with seats in order to accommodate the company. "The Doll Home" afforded fine scope for the display of the reader's dramatic ability, and her most telling passages were received with hearty applause by the audience whom she carried along. by the audience, whom she carried along with her, absorbing their interest in her own inimitable fashion, so that when the climax was finally reached and the thrill-ing scene between husband and wife drew o a close, there was a general fluttering of handkerchiefs and a suspicious moisture about the eyes of the company. Mrs. and Miss Fuller received the guests upon their Miss Fuller received the guests upon their entrance. THEIR FIRST GAME WON

SULLIVAN'S COLTS SECURE A VIC-TORY FROM POWERS' PETS.

The Game Characterized by some Lively Playing-An Analysis of the Players Around with the Scrappers-Topics of the Turf.

The new team which will represent Washogton in the Atlantic Association this summer made its debut yesterday at Capitol Park before a critical audience of about 400 persons, and made a decidedly favorable impression. In spite of the cold weather the men put up an excellent game of ball, although the errors were numerous on both sides, and succeeded in defeating Power's new Association team from Rochester by the close score of 6 to 5.

The unpleasant weather interfered very materially with good playing, but enough of it was shown to demonstrate to the ob server that Sullivan has secured a promis server that Suilivan has secured a promising team of youngsters, who, after a few weeks work, will be able to render an excellent account of themselves.

The victory yesterday over the Rochesters was largely due to the magnificent pitching of young Maloney, who kept the hits well scattered. He has excellent control of the ball and plenty of speed and deceptive curves. He was well supported by Nicholas, the latter's only trouble being in his throwing to bases. Hill, the new third baseman, loomed up as a slugger of no mean ability. He cracked out a safe hit each time he went to the bat, and it made but little difference to him who the opposing pitcher was, for Powers put in three of his twirlers and their curves were batted with equal freedom.

three of his twirlers and their curves were batted with equal freedom.

The local team opened the game, and Bader, the first batter, reached his base on an error by O'Brien, and promptly purloised second. Jordan's sacrifice advanced him to third and the first run of the game was scored when McGuire dropped. Riddle's pop fly in front of the plate. Rochester tied the score in its half of the hining on Bird's fumble of Lyon's grounder, a stolen base and errors by Nicholas and Bird, and went into the lead in the second liming on Greenwood's double in the second inning on Greenwood's double and a single by Philips.

Bader was the first man to lead off for Washington in the third, and by patient waiting secured his base on balls. Then he gave an exhibition of base-running such as the patrons of the game in this city have seidom seen, stealing second and third in succession and scoring on Jordan's single to right. That player stole second and scored on Knowles' wild throw of Whistler's grounder. Whistler nimbly capered to second, reached third on a missed third strike and came home on Me-Guire's error.

Guire's error. Washington further increased this lead washington further increased this lead in the sixth on Hill's triple to left and Mace's sacrifice hit. An error by Riddle, a stolen base, Phillips' triple and Fitzgerald's single gave the visitors two runs in its half of the inning. The local team elfnehed the vistory in the seventh with a score on Bader's bunt hit and wild throws by McGuire and O'Brien, Bird's had throw Callaban's O'Brien. Bird's bad throw, Callahan's single and Scheffler's sacrifice yielded the visitors a run in the cighth, but they were still one behind, and the local team left them in the ruck and finished winner.

The features of the game were the bat-ting of Hill and Bader, the base running of the former and the battery work of Maloney and Nicholas. Phillips did excellent work for the visitors, and he and Greenwe carried off the honors. The score:

Analyzing the Players, While one game hardly furnishes a criterion by which to judge the future of a ball team, yet the work done by the Washington Club vesterday was sufficient to justify everything its friends have claimed or it. The young players whom Sullivan has secured were carefully culled from the best players in the minor leagues, and to a critical observer it is apparent that his judgment has not gone far astray. The only comparison, of course, which the average patron of the game makes will be with last year's team. It is a comparison between old and year. son between old and young blood, and cer-tainly the latter does not suffer by it. The men play with a dash and vim that is in striking contrast to the manner in which the Leaguers disgusted audiences last summer. The men seem to have their hearts in the game, and the fact that each of them has a reputation yet to make, is the incentive which makes them as good, if indeed, not better, players than those who represented Washington on the ball field ast reason.

Taking the men in the positions in which Taking the men in the positions in which they played yesterday a brief analysis of each may not be amiss. Nicholas, the catcher, is an excellent back-stop, his only weakness being his apparent inability to throw accurately to second. That is not likely to continue very long, and is attributable more to the cold weather than anything else.

In Maloney the local team has a jewel He is a pitcher that is liable to fool the best batters, and if given good fielding support will prove a valuable man. His curves port will prove a valuable man. His curves are good and speedy and his control of the ball all that could be desired.

Whistler at first seems slow in handling badly-thrown balls, but he was evidently nervous yesterday. It will take more than one game to judge hita accurately.

Bird is a catcher, and yesterday in playing second occupied the position he has never held before. He seems to be a ball player, however, and when he occupies his regular position will probably give a good account of himself.

It is unnecessary to speak of Jack Rid-

It is unnecessary to speak of Jack Rid the uniccessary to speak of Jack Riddle. Those who saw him last summer know his ability. Hill, the new third baseman, promises to be the best man who has ever occupied that position for the local team. He is quick and active, and keeps the runner planed to the base, although always gatting into position. though always getting into position for balls hit to his territory. He also is a free hitter and ought to rank well up among the batters in the Atlantic Association. Only two of the regular fielders, Jordan and Bader, participated in yesterday's game, and both attended to everything that came their way. Both are ball players. Bader is undoubtedly going to become a favorite. He is a good batter, and runs bases in a style that Washington audiences have never been accustomed to see. He is specdier than either Hoy or Wilmot, and from his work in the field is a reliable catcher. Jordan is also a swift base runner and a good fielder.

Taken aitogether the team is one of the dashy sort, such as the Clevelan is were, and, while the men may prove inferior in haiting, they will make up for it by saperior fielding and base-running. In the latter department the team is especially strong. The men, instead of loitering on a base, seize the first opportunity to get away, and they do it with excellent judgment. The team is a good one, and when and a good fielder.

the season closes it ought to be well up toward the top.

What is especially needed now is team work, and, when the men have become accustomed to each other's methods of play. they will surprise some of those who be-lieve the Lesgue contains all the playing ability in the country. Gleason has been heard from and will be here in time to play in to-morrow's game. The last heard from O'Brien he was in Philadelphia, and he is also expected to-morrow. When these two arrive the team will be complete.

The work on the new grounds is pro-

The work on the new grounds is progressing very satisfactorily and will be opened to the public sometime the latter part of the week.

The following additional exhibition games have been arranged: Lehigh University, April 3; Hamilton, 4, 5; Boston League, 8, 9; Richmond, 14, 15.

Pugilistic Pointers, Locally considered, pugilism is experiencing a big boom in this vicinity. eneing a lig boom in this vicinity. The only topic discussed by admirers of tha manly art is the approaching mill between McMillan and Northridge. The date of the fight will be April 24, and it will occur within a convenient distance of the city. The tickets are being disposed of very rapidly and financially it will be the most successful fight that has ever been pulled off in this locality. Both men are training well and both ought to make an excellent fight. It will be a long fight, undoubtedly, McMillan has a reputation as a stayer and McMillan has a reputation as a stayer and besides has greatly improved in cleverness since his last set-to. Northridge has a reputation as a Queensberry fighter, and his long reach ought to help him considerably. On the merits of the men there is but little choice. Both are equally matched. Northridge has the advantage in weight, but this is counter-balanced by Mae's endurance. It's a toss of the penny to pick the winner, and if both enter the ring in prime condition we shall see a rattling good fight What's the matter with Fielden? He is loing some queer backing and filling with Young in ignoring the latter's repeated challenges. Even his friends are going challenges. Even his friends are going back on him, and the only way in which he can recover the lost ground is to get on a match with Young as quickly as possible, whether it be for fun or money.

All is in readiness for the first meeting of the Washington Jockey Club, which com-mences on Tuesday. The new course at Bennings will doubtless attract a large crowd, and the programme offered will be the best in the racing line this city has had for years. All the good stables will be rep-resented, and the five days sport ought to satisfy the most captious. The new stables from New York will arrive this morning about 9 o'clock. Among the horses expected are those of the West-ern Union Stables, W. A. Honig, Bradley and others.

The best features of the new track are the paddock and betting ring. The latter is large enough to accommodate forty stands, and it is expected that about twenty-five bookmakers will attend, and as the horses are all untried since the winter's rest, liberal odds are anticipated. Chrence McDowell of Baltimore will be the presiding judge, and James Lee of New York, the starier.

Altogether a very successful meeting of the new organization is anticipated.
